

Flavored tobacco policy restrictions

as of December 31, 2020

Truth Initiative's flavor policy database analyzes flavored tobacco product laws enacted by U.S. states, counties, cities, and towns. This database is updated quarterly. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) policy announced in January 2020 is not reflected in the database.

The 2009 Family Smoking Prevention and Tobacco Control Act (TCA) banned the sale of cigarettes with a characterizing flavor (e.g. fruit), but exempted menthol cigarettes and did not apply to flavored tobacco products like e-cigarettes, little cigars, hookah and smokeless tobacco. The passage of the law gave the FDA the power to implement flavor-related product standards on other tobacco products, but the agency has so far not enacted any comprehensive policies. Flavors also play a big role in the youth e-cigarette epidemic — 97% of youth who vape use flavored products — and while the FDA issued a policy in January 2020, we believe the policy is deficient and has many regulatory gaps, including allowing menthol in all e-cigarettes as well as all flavors in open systems and disposable e-cigarette products. We chose not to include this FDA policy in this database project and instead highlight state and local policies. Implementing strong, local flavor policies that restrict the sale of all flavored tobacco products, including menthol, is an increasingly important tool in ensuring effective tobacco control efforts and protection of the most vulnerable populations. The TCA also includes a provision that allows states and localities across the country to implement their own sales restrictions on flavored tobacco products. These local actions address the regulatory gap and reduce the availability and appeal for flavored tobacco products to youth and young adults.

NOTE: The methodology used to generate estimates and data contained in this report was updated to ensure a more accurate representation of coverage of policies that restrict flavored tobacco product sales across the United States. With the exception of the figure entitled “Flavored Tobacco Policies Passed By Year” and the section entitled “Jurisdictions Pending Litigation,” estimates and data contained in this report represent policies that either are in effect or will be in effect by a confirmed implementation date. We also updated our definition of comprehensive bans to include a parameter on retailer exemptions.

Policies highlighted in green are localities that either passed a policy between 10/1/2020 and 12/31/2020 or have an existing policy that removed exemptions for menthol/mint/wintergreen flavored products between 10/1/2020 and 12/31/2020, thus making the policy comprehensive.

Policies restricting all tobacco products is in bold

§ Restriction applies to unincorporated part of county

The following jurisdictions prohibit sales of flavors such as fruit, candy, alcohol, or dessert, excluding tobacco flavor but do not include menthol flavors in bans. These jurisdictions differ in whether or not they include menthol/mint/wintergreen flavors across product types – for example in some jurisdictions the sale of menthol in e-cigarettes is not permitted, but menthol flavored cigarettes, cigars, and other products such as hookah are still sold.

As of December 31, 2020, in 202 jurisdictions and three tribes, menthol/mint/wintergreen flavored products are exempted:

Flavored e-cigarette policies are in bold italics

- = exempts menthol cigarettes
- = exempts menthol e-cigarettes
- = exempts menthol cigars (includes premium cigars, cigars, little cigars, and cigarillos)
- = exempts other menthol tobacco products (i.e. pipe tobacco, hookah/waterpipe, smokeless tobacco, roll-your-own tobacco)

As stated above, the FDA's January 2020 e-cigarette flavor policy leaves many loopholes in favor of the tobacco industry. However, local and state jurisdictions have taken action to target e-cigarettes.

As of December 31, 2020, 39 jurisdictions and two tribes have banned the sale of all e-cigarettes.
